A word about words...

Many words in this text are based on common words known as “sight words”, DolchWords, or high-frequency words. These are very common words that a reader should recognize by sight and not having to sound out. I would point you to the following web sight for a more in-depth explanation www.literacyconnection.com.

My books are targeted at certain Lexile reading score ranges. Each book is scored through the The Lexile Framework® for Reading Analyzer and printed on the back of my books. This is a great resource and I recommend their website... www.Lexile.com.

Please take the time to research these topics. In no way am I connected with these web sites. I am not a representative for these sites and receive no compensation from them.
